Article

A Quick Fix.....or not?

In the world of prop collecting, the term “set-used” is the foundation of our hobby. But is it possible for something to be “too” set-used? If a prop or costume has sustained damage, does this make the piece more desirable (due to its propensity to have been really used onscreen) or less desirable (because it might not display well, or be worth as much?) This brings me to the focus of this article. If a prop or costume has been damaged, should you repair it?

Let’s face it....the very nature of prop and wardrobe collecting revolves around acquiring items that have been used in the filming of a movie or a TV series, so we expect these items to show a certain amount of set wear. If you are lucky enough to own a resin Xena battle sword, for instance, but it looks like it just came off the assembly line, then chances are it wasn’t used by the WP very much. Costumes get put on and taken off frequently, moved from place to place, and then put back on hangers or thrown over a chair until they are needed again. Props, especially weaponry, are used primarily in fight scenes, so they get nicks and dings to the paint, the blades or hilts get warped or damaged, decorations fall off and get lost, and occasionally pieces get broken. Unless a weapon was used for close-ups or remained in its sheath during filming, it is rare to find one without some amount of wear. However, not all damage is created equal. A small chunk taken from the blade of a dagger may endear the piece to a collector, but a crack that goes all the way through a blade may not be as appealing. So, again, should you fix it or leave it as is? Does making a repair decrease the value since the prop or costume is no longer as it was when it came off the set? And if you do decide to fix something, what materials should you use? Are there any to avoid? Finally, if you decide to sell the piece later, after you have made a repair, what information should you pass on to the new owner?

After speaking with a fair amount of serious collectors over the years regarding this very topic, I have discovered that there are many schools of thought on the subject. Let’s discuss some of them.

I have a sword that was used in the Xena episode, “Death Mask.” I love the weapon and purchased it intact from a reputable seller in New Zealand. However, when it arrived on my doorstep here in the USA, it was in three separate pieces. The box had been bent and was severely damaged. Since props are scarce and part of the appeal of collecting is the overall limited number available, obviously the prop cannot be “replaced.” Therefore, if a prop is damaged to the point where it is aesthetically or functionally altered, then a permanent repair is warranted since the prop in its current state may be unsightly for display. I also know firsthand that it was damaged in transit and not on the set. I could attempt a repair myself, but the resin is heavy, there are three separate broken pieces, and I don’t really have the tools or the skills to ensure that it is going to look very good when it’s fixed. In this instance, I might opt to have it professionally repaired.

I also own two Valkyrie saddle blankets that came to me from the collection of Xena's riding double, Bex, and both blankets had black horsehair on them. In this instance, even though the blankets were not torn, they were slightly matted on the inside with horsehair, and yet I would not consider washing them for a million dinars. I thought this example was appropriate because it fits into the category of altering a prop from its original, set-used condition, and that is essentially what you are doing when you make a repair.

So what if you have a weapon with a little less damage, perhaps with a crack in it? This is something that you could leave alone, or could decide to repair yourself since the weapon is still intact and is probably not in any danger of breaking in half. I have heard of collectors using epoxy resin, crazy glue, gorilla glue and even Elmer's glue to fill in these types of cracks just to give the crack a little more stability. Others refuse to introduce any other material onto or into the prop because they feel that it takes away some of the nostalgia, or value (actual value or perceived/sentimental value) of the item.

Minor repairs to wardrobe are perfectly fine as long as the alteration is not permanent. For instance, using seamstress tape on the inside of the garment to close seams, cover holes, etc. is perfect since this tape can be removed without leaving glue behind. You may decide to do this so the garment hangs properly on a mannequin, or to further prevent an existing tear from getting out of hand.

I think we can safely establish that repairing a prop is up to the owner of the item, and that person's personal philosophy on collecting. So what do you do then, if you decide to sell this item later on?

My own opinion as a collector is that unless you feel a repair is absolutely necessary to the structural integrity of an item, it should be left alone. But as the owner of a prop, you do have the right to do with it as you see fit. Selling a repaired prop is another story, however. As a collector, you should do the honorable thing and ensure that you disclose to the new owner, prior to the sale, the fact that the prop has been repaired. If you fixed it yourself, you should be prepared to tell the potential buyer what you used (glue, seamstress tape, etc.) and if possible, provide before and after photos. If you received an item that was previously repaired by someone else, you should also pass this information (if known) on to the potential new owner. I think this is the polite thing to do, even if you don't know the nature of the repair. Provide as much information as you can, including the condition you received the item in, and if the seller disclosed any repair information to you. If the item was received in good shape and you accidentally cracked or damaged the item yourself and then repaired it, it would be in good faith to share this with the potential buyer as well.

With items that have been temporarily repaired, such as wardrobe items with seamstress tape, the new owner can decide if they want to return the torn or damaged garment to its original state for a true set used item.

One last thing to consider, was the item damaged on purpose? If so, repairing it would decrease the value and make it impossible to screen match. Here's a good example. Barbie has a Hercules shammy shirt, worn by Kevin Sorbo, with an L shaped cut near the shoulder. This was done on purpose for the set because character Luscious Deluxe played by Traci Lords in Season Six Episode "Hercules, Tramps and Thieves" cut his shirt with her sword in a specific scene. If Barbie had permanently repaired the cut, and then screen-matched that exact tear in that episode later, it would be devastating, and decrease the value significantly.

Props can be the same way. If you received a broken sword, but on a screen cap later you found the item to be broken by a bad guy, then repair would actually alter the prop in a negative way and erase the possibility of a screen match. These are just a few of the reasons why it is a very personal choice whether or not to repair an item. We would love to hear from you!! Please let us know what you think...what is your personal philosophy on making repairs to, or somehow altering, props? Feel free to shoot Barbie a quick email and let her know, and we'll publish the results in the next issue of Prop House!

A Wicked Good Time

Need to sell multiple Xena/Hercules Props and Wardrobe?

GROUP MAILINGS

Lets have some fun selling on our terms without ebay fees and build our collections through other serious Xena and Hercules enthusiasts. We all need to sell items occasionally for various reasons so instead of dealing with the ebay rules and fees lets try selling among ourselves rendering a most satisfying and fun transaction for all.

We have all had a run in with unsavory sellers and buyers that lurk around on ebay so this will keep prop and wardrobe sales among our circle and we know they will be going to a good home

I can do a group mailing with a general list of descriptions and prices of items you have for sale. Then you can sell them on a first come first serve basis to the collectors who respond to you.

Any questions comments or suggestions on these mailings backed by Xena Prop House please email allaboutartgalry@aol.com -Barbie Arms-

Prop of the Month Showcase

Urn seen in 'Friend in Need 2'
Does anyone know who has this?

Owned by Tricia
Gabrielle Scroll

One of my real favorites and one of my first purchases from the Yahoo auctions. The paper is very soft and delicate. The fabric ties are glued on. The Writing looks hand-done to me. I wonder what tale it tells??

Tricia has an amazing collection and I will be featuring items from her collection in the upcoming months of XPH.

If you have any comments or questions please direct them to Barbie at allaboutartgalry@aol.com or Xenaprohouse@aol.com

Coming Home

This section is designed to display items that match back up with the props or wardrobe that were scattered to all four corners of the earth years ago during the feverish Auctions.

I am on a mission to try and see if I can network collectors to bring wardrobe and props back together a venture I truly enjoy, one prop at a time!

8. Dagger
FOUND

Dagger that I thought might be a damaged prop as I've seen it in episodes with a skull on the end of the handle but mine lacks the skull. Then I was watching "Many Happy Returns" (season 6) and finally spotted my dagger, no skull.

9. Pearl Necklace FOUND

In a flashback segment using scenes from "The Debt", I saw what I had thought was just a generic necklace I had that I believed I'd never see in a scene, is a dead ringer for the one Gabrielle is wearing. The convincing part is the spacing between the pearls in the necklace and the size of the necklace. It looks very close to mine.

Please contact Paul if you have seen any of his props txodo@hotmail.com

Owned by Randi A. Sarokoff, Ph.D., BCBA X 5

1. Earrings and Ring Marked Lucy

Here is a silver bracelet that came out of a box that was a brown carton labeled Gabrielle/Renée that had goodies in it! Can anyone verify the validity of these bracelets worn by Gabrielle?

4. Gauntlets

Here are Gauntlets made really well of woven black leather strips. They say Kora and also say Emma inside. They were supposed to be from Young Hercules. So far, Kora in Young Hercules did not wear them and I have no idea about an Emma they are 2 different people as the actress who played Kora is not named Emma, could have been her stunt or double.

It has a thin tube with holes in it that runs the full length of the blade but the holes are only from the tip to about half way down. The handles are made of closed cell foam with a resin coating and then painted but the blades are rubber, neat little daggers measuring 9" long that look identical in appearance.

xena\_trade\_center@yahoo.com

For Sale by Torey Hercules complete costume Price reduced $5,000 FIRM

It is COMPLETE and it has the costume tags and IAW COA and everything is HIS. It even has mints in his little leather pouch (probably for his close ups with the ladies)

Kevin Sorbo wore this full costume in the 5th season Xena episode "God Fearing Child" where Xena had her baby and Hercules was hugged by Lucy at least a few times while wearing that costume. It also does come with the costume tag that states it to be Kevin Sorbo's complete costume. The tag reads Xena EP. # 13 Kevin Sorbo Hercules.

The detail on Kevin's left gauntlet is astounding. Kevin always said, "When the gauntlets come on- I AM Hercules!"
The right gauntlet is the nicer of the two- with a red carnelian polished stone in it.

For Sale by Lorraine aka Kimba

Xena Stunt Boots

Here are Lucy's stunt boots and they come with the IAW COA showing that they are Lucy's with a label. Something else to be said about these boots- Lucy herself advertised these boots on her site stating them to be hers, as they were auctioned off for charity, along with quite a few other props and costumes of hers at the time. They are also her size so even though we know they aren't her hero boots, we know she obviously did some stunts on horseback, and these are equestrian boots. Lucy wore these English equestrian boots when she did limited stunt work on top of Tilly (Argo) the beautiful palomino mare she rode throughout the series. The boots are actually black painted brown to go with her brown leathers. They are a size 10 1/2 (her size) and are a rubber material not leather like her normal boots. $150

Xena Shamaness and Queen Marga Costumes were SOLD

PLEASE CONTACT LORRAINE FOR MORE INFORMATION AND PICTURES XWPARGO@AOL.COM

FOR SALE BY ELLIE

Ellie came up with a great idea!

Since people don't seem to have a lot of liquid assets these days she felt that there may be a lot of people who have a bunch of frequent flyer miles that they don't, or won't, be using...or maybe it's just too expensive for people to travel anywhere right now, and so their frequent flyer miles may expire. Since Ellie NEEDS frequent flyer miles or airplane tickets for her travels, then maybe people can use theirs to buy the remainder of her Xena things for sale. So Ellie devised a "price list" if someone is interested in donating some of their miles to buy her a ticket to Kenya (which would only really cost about $150 to transaction.

Schedule as follows

- $1500 Callisto Angel Wings and Hudson Harness with receipt from effects company (ticket to Kenya using miles)
- $1000 Xena resin FIN Katana with IAW COA (ticket to Kenya)
- $1000 Callisto Angel Wings with no harness with receipt from effects company (ticket to Kenya)
- $600 Gabrielle's Fishsticks Tail
- $150 Amazon/Misc Spears
- $100 misc. Gold Bow

Large Demon Horns

I am currently offering payment plans, since I know that many of you have been affected by the economy. Please feel free to contact me, so we can work out a plan for you.

This sword is from 'It's a Wrap' labeled Draxel Sword on the COA...which would be from Xena Episode 'Locked Up and Tied Down'...but was also seen used in several episodes and very famously seen used by Marcus in 'Mortal Beloved', it is made of a standard closed cell foam with a resin handle.

Owned by Morgan X 4

1. Amazon Queen Choker

This choker has beautiful shells worn by a Queen

2. Xena Snowglobe

The history with these is that there were only 100 made. These were a crew gift, but unlike the other crew gifts that came from Rob and the other producers, Lucy ordered them as a thank-you from herself to the cast and crew. I only know of 3 in the possession of collectors, but there may be more. I've also heard more than one horror story about them getting tossed in the trash or broken in toy boxes or discarded in some other way.

The material is plastic, the base is blue and it seems thicker than most snow globes you see as souvenirs, for example. The "snow" is all sorts of colors. There is a tiny hard plastic plug in the bottom where the water was filled or can be refilled, I suppose.

3. Tall Amazon Spear

Seen in the late Amazon Episodes such as "Path of Vengeance"

4. Sword

Used by Gab in "Amphipolis Under Seige", by Gab in "Dreamworker", by Xena in "Endgame", by Draco's army in "Sins of the Past", Xena's Army in "Bitter Suite", and can be seen in these eps too:

"The Price, The Path Not Taken, When in Rome, A Good Day, Locked up and Tied Down, Little Problems, Looking Death in the Eye and Path of Vengeance". This sword was also seen in many Hercules Episodes.

Animal Attraction

Ellie's Healing Work

I am an animal intuitive healer. I practice many forms of healing...BodyTalk, AnimalTalk, CCMBA, Reiki, hypnotherapy, past life regression therapy, Fuji-san, channeling, numerology, Etheric Plane Communication and Multi-Generational Healing, with a background in homeopathic and holistic intuitive medicine. I have taught classes in Egyptian Numerology to help people delve into their future and comprehend their pasts, and I have taught CCMBA across the world. All of the techniques I utilize cater to each individual's needs, in whatever ways serves them in their highest good and the highest good of all concerned. My main goal is to support all in their awakening experience. And I believe that one day we will all return to the Oneness that we once knew.

I have been working with the Sheldrick Wildlife Trust for the past three years. I have also worked with the Asian elephants in Sri Lanka at the Millennium Elephant Foundation (<http://millenniumelephantfoundation.org>). And I, currently, work with Karma Rescue, a dog rescue organization here in the U.S. (www.karmarescue.org) and have done healing work with most of our dogs, with HUGE success. I am attaching some before and after photos of some animals that I have worked with, so that you can see the results of some of the work that I do.

One is of Jazz...and he was the victim of Hurricane Katrina here in the U.S. He came to us with a litany of skin disorders, because he had been in water for so long. The after photo was taken, less than two weeks after I did my first healing on him. And, emotionally, he is a new "man."

Jazz Before

Jazz After

And the second is of Abigail...the victim of a hideous crime, in which someone doused her in gasoline and set her on fire. When I first saw her, over 60% of her skin had been removed due to excessive burns. The after photo was taken 9 days and 10 weeks after the work that I did with her.

Before

After

And third one is of Shida...one of the black rhinos at the Sheldrick Wildlife Trust. He had arrived at the Trust one day with a prolapsed rectum. They had tried to stitch up his rectum several times, but the stitches just would not hold. And then the stitched too tight, and he was not able to defecate. The day I had done the healing with him, the vet came by to remove the stitches, so he could finally go to the bathroom. So I did a healing session with him while all of this was happening, they left the stitches off and then miraculously, the prolapse stayed in place and did not pop out again. The after photos show him before, the day after and the week after the healing work I had done with him.

In my experiences, I have learned that we ALL need to release whatever traumas have been programmed into our bodies because if we do not, then we could die.

After dogs have been in a scuffle, they will shake to release the imprint that has been left behind from that fight...if they do not, then they will die.

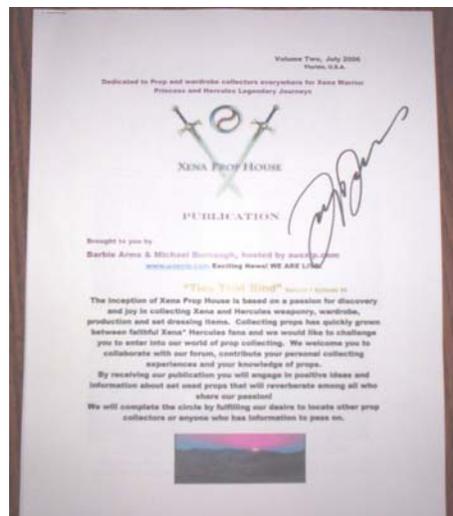

And so, I specialize in working with rescue animals...those who have experienced very serious traumas, because I feel that those one the ones who are most in need. If I can help them heal some of the emotional and energetic scars, then they could have an even better chance at survival.

I do understand the wild nature of the animals I work with. Therefore, I do not need to actually touch them, in order to do the work that I do. I can work from a distance...from 10 feet away to 10,000 miles away. When I work with the big elephants at the Sheldrick Wildlife Trust, I am able to touch them and be near them, because the elephants and their keepers both understand that I am there to help them. But when I work with the Asian elephants in Sri Lanka, their keepers are more afraid, so I respect the distance they request of me and I work with them from afar.

Seeds of Faith

I want to tell everyone about our kindred Spirit Marjanka in the Netherlands. Mar has been fighting cancer for some time now and has recently had a serious hospitalization.

She was hospitalized on April 29, with a life threatening ammonia and infection and was in the ICU ward for two weeks where she was put in a coma so the infections could be taken care of, she almost did not make it. After the ICU they put her in a regular ward and she is all right but still has a very long way to go. Please feel free to extend your prayers to her if you like, we will all pray for her recovery. -Barbie-

Beth in New Zealand Says

Sending mail overseas will soon be more expensive. New Zealand Post says it is raising prices starting July 7 after seven years of holding them in the face of increasing costs.

Postal Services chief executive Peter Fenton today said the price increases were largely driven by what overseas postal organizations charged NZ Post to deliver mail in other countries. The rise may be 20% for most letters and parcels.

The Quill is Mightier

Gab: Xena, are you alright? You're drooling. And you're shopping. You never shop. You hate shopping. You hate crowds. Do I need to be concerned? We're not going to have to crash the Temple of the Furies again, are we? Last time we did that, your poor mother was a little stressed out.

Xena: Well that's what happens when her only daughter, cursed by three scantily clad yet somehow inexplicably overdressed goddesses, is standing over her with a sacrificial knife. And don't be silly, Gabrielle. I love to shop. HERE.

Gab: This is the marketplace, Xena. Last time we were here, you alleviated your boredom by carving your initial in a vegetable vendor's wagon, practiced your juggling skills at the orange peddler's booth, and terrorized the fabric seller's children by picking your teeth with your boot knife and mumbling incoherently.

Xena: You forgot about the fish monger. I tied his bootlaces to his dog's collar and tossed a piece of raw meat off the end of the dock. It was really only marginally entertaining.

Gab: That still doesn't explain your current glazed-over expression and rapidly accelerating heartbeat.

Xena: You mean you didn't see the flyers for the third annual weapons convention?

Gab: Umm...no. I thought we were coming into town to buy tomatoes.

Xena: Exactly! And ...I'll need something to cut them with. Dull cutlery is not only dangerous, Gabrielle, but makes for a substandard place setting. What if we have dinner guests?

Gab: uh-huh.

Xena: If you want to go on ahead and pick up a few supplies, how about if we just meet back here in an hour?

Gab: I think I'll feel safer in this particular crowd if I'm standing next to six feet of lethal combat skills, if you don't mind.

Xena: Sweet! Let's go. This guy over here has 74 different types of daggers, and I want to visit the sword sharpening stall. Those thugs we ran into on the way in messed up my blade. Intestinal juices cause pitting, you know. There's also supposed to be a new game coming out called "Bloodbath." It's interactive!

Gab: You know it makes me happy to see you enjoy a hobby, Xena, but really...how many weapons do you actually need?

Xena: Well, you see, Gabrielle, it's not really about need. Technically, I don't really NEED an entire personal body arsenal, but it just makes me feel better. Try to imagine yourself traveling around the countryside without a scroll. You'd feel naked. Exposed. Not whole.

Gab: True, but I don't have a scroll tucked into every bodily orifice imaginable.

Xena: I resent that, Gabrielle. I have never, ever, had a weapon up my nose.

Gab: What about that time you took out that Mycenaean warlord with a walnut.... expertly ejected from your nasal cavity?

Xena: That was a fluke. He interrupted my dinner. Besides that.

Gab: What about the time you tried to breathe fire in that tavern, and you got some 100-proof whisky straight up your schnozz, but you leaned in next to the torch anyway and took out the barkeep and thirteen other patrons with hardly a singed nosehair?

Xena: Pure coincidence. That port went down the wrong pipe. Besides that.

Gab: Well let's not forget that time when you.....

Xena: Oh look! Sharp pointy things!!

Gab: Warriors.....

Xena: Well, Gabrielle, You see, buying weapons that you don't really "need" is practically irrelevant. There's just something about acquiring them that turns perfectly normal human beings into crazed Neanderthals incapable of rational thought. People really need something to rely on in these tough decision-making times, so I've decided to help them out. Everyone from here to Thrace could keep a list, perhaps in their scabbards for quick reference. Plus, if we laminate them, blood and gore will come off a lot easier.

Gab: Go on.....

Xena: Well, with Xena Reasoning, see, you go with your gut. Ignore the fact that you only have enough dinars for either dinner or that shiny boot knife, and decide if you can stand the sound of your stomach growling for a couple of nights.

Gab: That reasoning is a bit archaic, don't you think? What are we teaching our future generations?

Xena: Well if that eBiscuit is any indication, nothing much has changed. Don't you remember those two perfectly civilized women getting into a bar fight over the copper plate supposedly used in my mother's tavern in Sins of the Past? It was set dressing, for Zeus's sake! Only a corner of it was featured onscreen. I can't imagine what would have happened if they had found the rocks that those angry villagers threw at me before you jumped in between us in scene 24, act 5.

Gab: I guess you have a point. IreallyloveGabrielle's prop auctions drew quite the crowd.

Xena: Grrrrrr....

Gab: Sorry. I didn't mean to open old wounds.

Xena: No worries.... I bet I could make a few new ones with this baby! (grabs longsword).

Gab: And just where do you expect to carry it? Your boots are full, your bodice already weighs more than the factory it was stitched in, and your cleavage.....well, I guess you could keep it in there.

Xena: Blade side out, of course. Remember, I'm not a true Amazon.

Gab: How many readers do you think got that one?

Xena: All of them. Those PH people are up on their Greek Mythology.

Gab: True.

Xena: Just think, my reasoning could be used by future generations to make decisions about buying props. Except for Rob, who has very skewed feelings on the subject. We won't go there.

Gab: His wife is nice, though.

Xena: Very. And she reminds me of someone.

Gab: Yeah me too. I just can't think of who, though. Oh well.

Xena: Our future generations will just have to ask themselves a few simple questions when buying props. For example, can I comfortably hide out in the bushes with my 46-inch resin battle sword until the bill collector leaves? Do I mind being the best costumed inmate at the penitentiary when I'm serving time for tax evasion because I just had to fly to New Zealand and have Ares' 400 pound throne shipped overseas? And can I exist on dandelion roots and crabgrass for seven more days in order to buy the dagger of Helios from Season 2?

Gab: So it's like a trade-off.

Xena: Exactly. See, most people start out thinking clearly, but then they see something they suddenly realize they can't live without, such as my sleep shift from Many Happy Returns, and the wheels start turning. They think, well, so what if I only have 36 dinars until payday? That Amazon choker is only 25, and with shipping, I could still eat Ramen noodles for three days and visit my parents for lunch. If you don't like noodles, you can get canned Tuna for just a few pennies more.

Gab: It scares me to admit this, but you're actually starting to make sense.

Xena: I know, right??? I mean, say that you are trying to decide if you really need to fill up your car with gas or you could wait until next week because a full set of keys from Mom's tavern has just appeared on eBunion. With my line of reasoning, you instantly weigh your options and of course decide that twelve miles is really not that far to walk after all, and you are actually doing yourself a favor by getting out in the fresh air and getting all that exercise. Just like you said.... It's all about trade-offs.

Gab: Right.....like, will Gabrielle gnaw on my shiny new leather boots while I'm asleep because we could only afford a single apple for dinner? And will I make too much clanging noise when I sneak through the fence to milk the farmer's cow because I had to have that 43rd boot dagger instead of buying my dairy products locally like everyone else? And, my personal favorite, will I be traveling alone because I look funny carrying 500 pounds of metal while wearing only undergarments because we had to trade my battle dress for clean water and a 1200-calorie meal?

Xena: You know I can't walk around like that, Gabrielle. Everyone would see the SpongeBob underpants I got on eBarrel.

Gab: Your secret is safe with me.
